

United States Department of Agriculture,

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY.

NOTICE OF JUDGMENT NO. 367, FOOD AND DRUGS ACT.

ADULTERATION OF RAISINS AND EVAPORATED APPLES.

On or about September 20, 1909, M. J. Doebereiner, of Washington, D. C., offered for sale in the District of Columbia seven cases of raisins and two cases of evaporated apples. Analyses of samples of these products made by the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, showed them to be adulterated within the meaning of the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906. As it appeared from the findings of the analyst and report thereon that the said seven cases of raisins and two cases of evaporated apples were liable to seizure under section 10 of the act, the Secretary of Agriculture reported the facts to the United States attorney for the District of Columbia.

In due course a libel was filed against the said seven cases of raisins and two cases of evaporated apples charging adulteration, in that the said raisins and apples were infested with worms and other animal matter and in a filthy and putrid condition and unfit for human consumption, and praying seizure, condemnation, and forfeiture.

On October 22, 1909, the case came on for hearing and the court entered a decree of condemnation and forfeiture.

This notice is given pursuant to section 4 of the Food and Drugs Act of June 30, 1906.

JAMES WILSON,
Secretary of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19, 1910.
