

Analysis of a sample of the article by the Bureau of Chemistry of this department showed the following results:

Iodin number----- 96.6

Test for cottonseed oil: Strongly positive.

Product consists almost wholly of cottonseed oil.

Adulteration of the article was alleged in the information for the reason that a substance, to wit, cottonseed oil, had been mixed and packed therewith so as to lower and reduce and injuriously affect its quality and strength, and had been substituted in part for olive oil, which the article purported to be.

Misbranding was alleged for the reason that the statement, to wit, "Olio Puro D'Oliva Lucca Italy Olio Puro D'Oliva Guantito Produzione Propria," borne on the cans containing the article, regarding it and the ingredients and substances contained therein, was false and misleading in that it represented that the article was pure olive oil and that it was a foreign product, and for the further reason that it was labeled as aforesaid so as to deceive and mislead the purchaser into the belief that it was a pure olive oil and was a foreign product, whereas, in truth and in fact, it was not pure olive oil and was not a foreign product, but was a mixture composed in part of cottonseed oil of domestic origin.

On November 27, 1918, the defendant entered a plea of guilty to the information, and the court imposed a fine of $10.

6721. Adulteration of cheese. U. S. * * * v. 283 Cheeses. Default decree of condemnation, forfeiture, and destruction. (F. & D. No. 9074. I. S. No. 4069-p. S. No. E-1048)

On June 3, 1918, the United States attorney for the District of Maryland, acting upon a report by the Secretary of Agriculture, filed in the District Court of the United States for said district a libel for the seizure and condemnation of 283 cheeses, consigned on or about April 26, 1918, remaining unsold in the original unbroken packages at Baltimore, Md., alleging that the article had been shipped and transported from the State of North Carolina into the State of Maryland, and charging adulteration in violation of the Food and Drugs Act.

Adulteration of the article was alleged in the libel for the reason that it consisted in whole or in part of a filthy, decomposed, and putrid animal substance, and in that the cheeses were partially rotten, all soft, heavily coated with mold and none free from maggots or skippers.

On August 13, 1918, no claimant having appeared for the property, judgment of condemnation and forfeiture was entered, and it was ordered by the court that the product should be destroyed by the United States marshal.
