

of canned salmon at Oklahoma City, Okla., alleging that the article had been shipped in interstate commerce on or about August 25, 1936, by Whitney & Co., from Seattle, Wash., and charging adulteration in violation of the Food and Drugs Act. The salmon had been packed by the Alaska Year Round Canneries, of Seldovia, Alaska. A part was labeled: "Quail Brand Sockeye Red Salmon." The remainder was labeled: "Volunteer Fancy Red Alaska Sockeye Salmon."

The article was alleged to be adulterated in that it consisted wholly or in part of a decomposed animal substance.

On December 8, 1936, no claimant having appeared, judgment of condemnation and destruction was entered. On January 20, 1937, supplemental judgment was entered finding that a part of the product was not decomposed and was fit for human consumption and ordering that such part be delivered to a charitable organization, and that the decomposed part be destroyed.

26706. Adulteration of apples. U. S. v. 18 Bushels of Apples. Default decree of condemnation and destruction. (F. & D. no. 38488. Sample no. 25161-C.)

This case involved a shipment of apples that were contaminated with arsenic and lead.

On October 10, 1936, the United States attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, acting upon a report by the Secretary of Agriculture, filed in the district court a libel praying seizure and condemnation of 18 bushels of apples at Chicago, Ill., alleging that the article had been shipped in interstate commerce on or about October 4, 1936, by Wilensky & Lash from Benton Harbor, Mich., and charging adulteration in violation of the Food and Drugs Act. The article was labeled in part: "Wm. Britton Watervliet, Mich. R. 3 Delicious."

The article was alleged to be adulterated in that it contained added poisonous and deleterious ingredients, arsenic and lead, in amounts which might have rendered it injurious to health.

On December 4, 1936, no claimant having appeared, judgment of condemnation was entered and it was ordered that the product be destroyed.
